Prepare - Not Predict

33rd Sunday in Ordinary Time
World Day of the Poor
13 Nov 2022

Mal 3:19-20
2 Th 3:7-12
Lk 21:5-19

Christians are different from every other people - we live in anticipation that the world will end at the second coming of Christ.

We are already living in the "last days" since the "Passover" of Jesus (CCC 585). Every age has viewed his second coming apocalyptically. For us, Covid-19 comes to mind. In the Second Reading, some Thessalonians simply downed tools and sat waiting, after Paul warned that the end is near (1 Th 5:2). Throughout history, a few doomsday cult leaders have led their followers to mass suicide.

In the Gospel, Jesus warns against false Messiahs in the last days (Lk 21:8). Satan does not retire. He relentlessly sows fear to deceive, depress and steal souls. Christians must be alert and be unwavering witnesses to the truth till the end of time (Lk 21:13). Jesus promises that the power of the Holy Spirit will prevail - truth, courage, conviction and unity will triumph over deception, fear, confusion and division. We will be harassed, betrayed, even martyred - but never defeated (Lk 21:14-19). Paul is an exemplary model - in persecution and imprisonment, he continues unperturbed, with his living (making tents) and proclaiming of the Gospel throughout the eastern Mediterranean.

According to St Augustine, we should prepare for Jesus' second coming by living an authentic Christian life. He comments on Psalm 95: "Let us not resist his first coming, so that we may not dread the second ... We love him, yet we fear his coming. Are we really certain that we love him?"

Loving Christ means obedience to his commandments, doing his work (Jn 14:12-15) and being fruitful (Jn 15:5) through the Holy Spirit. Jesus has already come to us. We are the temple of the Holy Spirit (1 Cor 6:19-20). In holiness, we can face death with peace and calm (St Faustina, Diary #1343).

The paradox of holiness is that the closer we get to Christ, the more unworthy we feel (CCC 208). Feeling righteous? We may be Christian in name, Pharisee in practice. Pride often distorts holiness as exclusive, insulated and separated from people considered sinful. This opposes the inclusivity, openness and love preached and lived by Jesus. He engaged, not alienated - showed mercy, not judged. Are we guilty of alienating sinners, ostracising our enemies and opposing those we dislike? In this World Day of the Poor, we are reminded not to despise but to be charitable to the poor and marginalised.

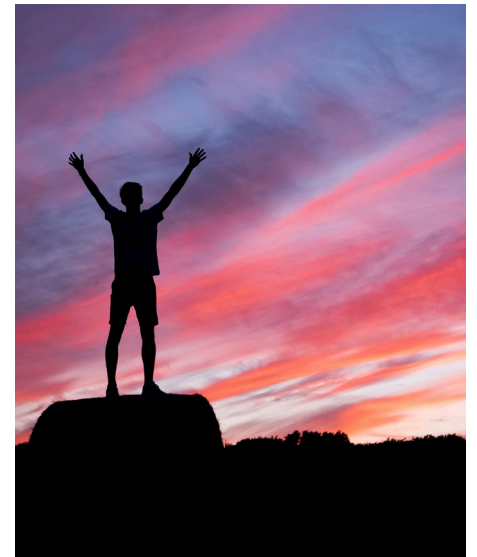

Legalism is an equally insidious trap - the scrupulous observance of laws as a mean to salvation. It supplants the salvific power of the cross. Are we unconsciously relying on our own merit for salvation, instead of on Jesus? Are we glorifying self, not God?

Society is addicted to comforts and conveniences. Steve Jobs once said: "Even people who want to go to heaven don't want to die to get there." Attachment to life itself leads to fear of death and suffering. Death can be faced courageously when we focus on our heavenly destiny. Jesus transformed death in his Resurrection (CCC 1009). Where there is faith, death is a gateway to new life. Where there is love, there is no pain - only sacrifice.

The fallen stones of the temple (Lk 21:6) are a grim reminder that all things are transient. God does not spare the Temple of Jerusalem, his physical abode of the old covenant, from destruction. Things are to be used, not idolised. Happiness is lost once things are gone. Only in God do we have true and everlasting joy. Hence, the First Reading and the Psalm exhort us to rejoice that God is coming to judge with righteousness, justice and fairness (Mal 3:19-20, Ps 98:5-9).

Before the second coming, we must face a final trial - the rise of the Antichrist and a great apostasy that will test our faith to its limit (CCC 675). Will we fall for the "religious deception" of the Antichrist? We may not know who the Antichrist will be, but we do know Jesus Christ and can follow him confidently - for he did not say "fear" but: "when these signs begin to happen, stand erect and raise your heads because your redemption is at hand." (Lk 21:28)

"Jesus promises that the power of the Holy Spirit will prevail - truth, courage, conviction and unity will triumph over deception, fear, confusion and division."

Lk 21:14-19
