Forgiveness and Patient Suffering

Palm Sunday
13 Apr 2025

Is 50:4-7
Phil 2:6-11
Lk 22:14-23:56

When we are betrayed by someone, the natural response might be to take revenge or hold a grudge. In today's readings, we see that Jesus was also betrayed. When he entered Jerusalem, the crowds praised and honoured him (cf. Lk 19:37). But when they realised he was not the 'king' that had come to overthrow the Romans, they wanted him killed (cf. Lk 23:23). Jesus responded to this in a radically different way from what many of us would probably have done: He loved and forgave them. Let us look at today's readings to see how we can imitate Jesus' response in our daily lives.

Firstly, we can express our feelings in prayer. We catch a glimpse to Jesus' human nature in the Gospel when he experienced great anguish in the Garden of Gethsemane (cf. Lk 22:44). Jesus, being truly human, understands our plight; and being truly God, wants to grant us strength to face such ordeals. However, we can only receive his strength if we fully rely on him through prayer. The importance of prayer was also reiterated twice by Jesus to his disciples on Maundy Thursday: "... pray not to be put to the test" (Lk 22:40; 22:46). He cautions us not to become overconfident in our own strength, but rather to rely entirely on him. We can do so by faithfully meditating on the Word of God daily. It is then that we can be a true disciple, fully ready to listen to the Lord so that we may live our lives in full communion with him (cf. Is 50:4). We can also end off our prayer like he did, entrusting the situation to him: "Nevertheless, let your will be done, not mine" (Lk 22:42).

Secondly, we can choose to forgive those who have hurt us. Remarkably, after being mocked and crucified, he still chose to forgive his torturers: "Father, forgive them; they do not know what they are doing" (Lk 23:34). While forgiveness is a difficult decision, it is nonetheless a necessary one if we want to experience inner healing. The Catechism of the Catholic Church states that God's "outpouring of mercy cannot penetrate our hearts as long as we have not forgiven those who have trespassed against us" (CCC 2840). When we choose to forgive, we make a conscious decision to see those who have hurt us as brothers and sisters in Christ who need God's love and mercy just as much as we do. This sentiment was shared by Mother Teresa: "If we really want to love we must learn how to forgive." However, this is easier said than done, and thus we can pray for the grace of humility to be able to do so. By imitating Jesus' humility, we will be able to take up our crosses and receive the necessary strength and courage to endure the suffering that comes with it (cf. Is 50:7; Phil 2:5-8).

After a moment of betrayal, the aftermath of the situation can be dreadful. It is likely that we will encounter the person again in our daily lives if it occurs at home, school, or the workplace. Rather than stressing over how we can deal with the other party, perhaps we can view these interactions as opportunities to accompany Jesus on his journey to Calvary. In sharing in Jesus' suffering, we learn to be as patient and persevering as he is. This was what Fr Henri Nouwen shared in Waiting for God: "The word 'patience' means the willingness to stay where we are and live the situation out to the full in the belief that something hidden there will manifest itself to us." This 'hidden manifestation' is Christ's Resurrection, which brings hope that hardened hearts may be transformed and that suffering does not have the final word. As we enter Holy Week, we can look forward to this renewal in Christ.

May we "heed his lesson of patient suffering and so merit a share in his Resurrection" (Palm Sunday Collect).

"If we really want to love we must learn how to forgive"

Jason Evert: Parenting For Purity, Live-By-Zoom

Renowned speaker Jason Evert shared his expertise on parenting for purity with 150 parents at SFX on Sat 29 Mar. The event, organised by the Catechetical - Family Apostolate, aimed to equip parents with practical tips and best practices to guide their children towards purity. This event marked the first session of the "SFX Chastity Roadmap" series, designed to support parents in nurturing their children's spiritual growth and purity.

Jason Evert, founder of the Chastity Project, emphasised the importance of parents as their children's primary intercessors. He encouraged parents to pray, fast, and offer sacrifices for their children's purity. The event was well-received, with parents expressing a renewed commitment to praying, fasting, and offering sacrifices for their children. The event concluded with a book sale, and refreshments at the JPll Hall. Here are some testimonies:

"I was engaged and bitter towards God, viewing chastity as a prison. But attending Jason Evert's 'Love Matters' talk in 2017 transformed my perspective. I learnt that chastity is the key to true happiness, and I felt at peace, ready to commit to my marriage. Six years later, my husband and I attended Jason's 'Parenting for Purity' talk, seeking guidance on raising our three young kids. Inspired by Jason's message to fast, pray, and

About Jason Evert

Jason Evert has travelled to six continents to bring the message of purity to millions of people for more than 25 years. He has lectured at dozens of universities and is a best-selling author of 20 books. He is a frequent guest on radio programmes throughout the country, and his television appearances include MSNBC, Fox News, BBC, and EWTN. Jason runs Chastity Project and its website chastity.com, hosts the podcast "Lust is Boring," and leads an international alliance of young people who promote purity in more than 40 countries.

offer sacrifices for our children, we started anew and were determined to commit to praying and offering up sacrifices for their purity, and trusting in God's plan for our family." - Mother of three

"We are always grateful for the opportunity to attend events that help us as young parents navigate this increasingly secularised world with our kids. We didn't only benefit from hearing Jason speak during the talk, but also from other parents when they shared their questions and concerns. It's good to know we are not alone on this journey!" - Bridget and Daniel (Parents of two young kids)

"The session was engaging, offering practical tips for parents, supported by data and lively examples. Jason's clear, concise communication and spot-on answers during the live Q&A were impressive. It's inspiring to see him authentically embody the principles he teaches." - Mother of three young kids
